

Censorship on LinkedIn Based on Political Views

LINKEDIN, AMAZON, REDDIT, FACEBOOK, GOOGLE, YOUTUBE, NETFLIX AND OTHER PALO ALTO VC FUNDED MEDIA COMPANIES HAVE AGREED TOGETHER TO CENSOR INFORMATION AND DELETE ACCOUNTS THAT DO NOT FOLLOW THE IDEOLOGY THAT THEY ARE PUSHING. THEY DO THIS BECAUSE THE PALO ALTO VENTURE CAPITALISTS ARE ALL PART OF THE SAME CARTEL OF SOCIOPATH FRAT BOYS WITH A TWISTED CONCEPT OF GLOBAL CONTROL! DO WHATEVER YOU CAN TO BANKRUPT THEIR COMPANIES IN SUPPORT OF YOUR HUMAN RIGHTS

LINKEDIN DELETES OUR FRIENDS ACCOUNTS BECAUSE THEY POSTED NEWS ARTICLES ABOUT SEX TRAFFICKING AND BRIBERY BY LINKEDIN BOSSES!

This support thread from LinkedIn proves that LinkedIn is monitoring and restricting views of your postings based on their own “Approved” political beliefs, and it explicitly says so in LinkedIn's own support thread.

Please share this with your network so we can put as much pressure as possible on LinkedIn to change this censorship policy.

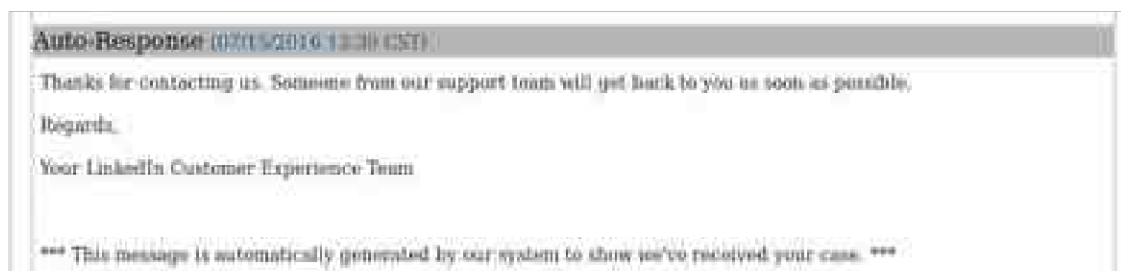

The following is a support thread from LinkedIn regarding a political discussion about James Comey, director of the FBI. The discussion was critical of his decision not to recommend prosecution of Hillary Clinton over the use of a private email server. The full text of the censored discussion posted on LinkedIn follows this blog posting here, and can be viewed on LinkedIn at Click here.
<https://www.linkedin.com/pulse/clinton-lynch-comey-time-line-does-add-up-dana?trk=mp-author-card>

The posts from the support thread are in chronological order:

It starts with me submitting a support request to LinkedIn asking why one of the comments on a posting I created was removed.

Auto-response from LinkedIn.

Some back and forth and submitting additional evidence of censorship.

Member (07/16/2016 15:37 CST)

attached is a snapshot of an email sent to me by LinkedIn, containing a comment on a post that now does not exist. I have contacted the author of the comment and he did not delete it. I did not delete it. So that only leaves LinkedIn. Please explain why my posts are being censored.

You can scroll down to the disturbing parts ...

Member (07/16/2016 16:18 CST)

His comment has been removed, that is the issue. He did not remove it nor did I. His comment can be seen in the screen image I sent previously of the summary report, but now does not exist on the post. Dana French

This is not a browser issue, the comment was posted and appeared in the summary report sent back to me by LinkedIn (see attachment). The comment existed, and was subsequently removed by LinkedIn. Please route it to the internal research team. I would like to know the time and date the comment was removed, who removed it, and why. Dana French

Hi Dana,

What does posting the comment again prove? The comment was posted, then sent back to me in a summary report, it existed. The issue is not the content of the comment. The issue is the comment was removed. I don't really care about the comment. What I want to know is who removed it and why? The person who posted the comment did not remove it. I did not remove it. That only leaves LinkedIn. If you can tell me what reposting the comment will achieve with regard to determining who removed the previous comment and why then I will ask him to repost the comment, but I don't understand what that has to do with the issue. Again the issue is who removed the comment and why? Dana French

Notice the claim here that "LinkedIn would never proactively delete a comment..."

Response (07/26/2016 21:01 CST)

Hi Dana,

I'm sorry it's taken this long to get back to you and thanks for being so patient.

I was having a discussion with my peers around this. If a comment is invisible, the reason could be any of these:

1. The member who has posted the comment would have deleted it
2. The owner of the post would have deleted it
3. The comment would have been flagged by any members on LinkedIn

Please note that the comment would disappear only because of any of the above and LinkedIn would never proactively delete a comment which was made.

Sincerely,

Here the LinkedIn support person admits that LinkedIn removed the comment and for a very disturbing reason ... LinkedIn does not allow discussions about certain "political beliefs", as of yet, unidentified.

The last response from the support person Shania is complete nonsense and in contradiction to the previous response from Nisha. I am simply asking for the list of political beliefs that are disallowed as discussion topics on LinkedIn. Nisha identified the location of this list is the Terms of Service, however I am unable to locate that list in that document. Please send me the list of political beliefs that are disallowed as discussion topics on LinkedIn.

Please be aware that it has already been established the comment WAS DELETED BY LINKEDIN. That is not in question anymore. It was deleted by the LinkedIn "Trust and Safety team", as identified by Nisha. The only issue now is where is the list of LinkedIn disallowed political beliefs? I was told by your support staff it was contained in the "Terms of Service" but I do not find it in that document. Please send me the document containing this list. Dana French

Then suddenly, for no apparent reason, the number of views on this posting went from almost zero, to almost 20 in a couple of hours. And this was weeks after it was originally posted, so the interest in the topic of the article had waned by that time.

The above graph tells me that after I caught them in the act of censoring my posts, LinkedIn subsequently changed some "view limiter" setting that allowed this post to receive more views. However I doubt they removed the limitation completely, given the censorship mentality revealed.

In this reply from LinkedIn, they are not even attempting to pretend they do not have a censorship list based on political views.

They say the list exists and is internal and private!!!

They also say there was a "miscommunication" about the comment being deleted by LinkedIn. Since we already know that LinkedIn deleted the comment, I interpret this to mean that the support person was not supposed to tell me they deleted it.

Response (07/28/2016 06:51 (CST))

Hi Dana,

Thanks for writing back to me and I understand your frustration.

Unfortunately, there was a miscommunication from our end, that the comment was deleted by us. I would like to apologize for the same.

Also, we will not be able to provide you with a list of political disbeliefs as that is something which is internal and private.

I appreciate your understanding.

Are we, the LinkedIn users, on some sort of super-secret double probation that only LinkedIn knows about?

Again the LinkedIn support person closed the case. Again I immediately reopened the case, and recognizing a dead end, I asked that my issue be escalated to the next support level.

Member (07/21/2016 08:49 CST)

If the list of political disbeliefs is internal and private, then why is it being imposed on LinkedIn users? How am I to know whether or not to waste my time expressing an opinion? Please show me the common courtesy of letting me know the rules before I waste my time expressing an opinion, only to have it deleted by LinkedIn based on some secret undisclosed list of political disbeliefs. There is no reason for you to "Appreciate my understanding", because I don't. Please escalate this to the next level of support because you have not provided any resolution to this issue.

And it appears that we will be discussing the list of disallowed political beliefs with a new LinkedIn support person soon ...

Response (07/29/2016 00:11 CST)

Hi Dana,

Thanks for your response.

I've forwarded your concern to another team at ours who will be in touch with you as quickly as possible.

And it begins again ... sigh. The new LinkedIn support person attempts to disavow any knowledge of censorship at LinkedIn, and it is a person from the same group identified previously as the group who initiated the censorship!

Hi Dana,

Thank you for reaching out to us regarding this matter.

I apologize for any confusion regarding this issue. Please note that we don't monitor, filter, or remove member-generated content from our site unless it concerns threats of physical harm, pornographic material, or abusive profanity. We respect the right of all members to freely express themselves. With only a few specific exceptions, we don't control the content that members post and aren't responsible for such content.

In regards to the removal of the comment on your Pulse article, we need to work directly with the member that made the comment to determine how it was removed. As this activity involves the actions on another member's account, for privacy reasons we are unable to release our findings or any actions taken. I tell the new support person that censorship is not the issue anymore, it has been proven and acknowledged by LinkedIn. The issue is making the list of disallowed political views public so that LinkedIn customers know whether or not to express an opinion on these topics.

 Dana French (AIX in the Cloud) 1 month ago

Apparently you did not read the thread. Multiple LinkedIn support personnel have verified that LinkedIn DOES monitor, filter, and remove member-generated content. That is no longer in question, but that is not the issue being discussed. The issue is the list of disallowed political views that is used by LinkedIn support personnel as a tool for performing their jobs. You personally may not be aware of this list, but the LinkedIn support personnel are, and they are using it in the daily performance of their work. If you are unaware of this list, then you are not in sync with the LinkedIn support team, because they are. My request is that you provide me with this list of disallowed political views that may be used for disallowing topics. This is so I do not waste my time creating and writing about political topics that will be deleted by LinkedIn because they violate some secret list, currently known only to LinkedIn support personnel. Please make this list of disallowed political views available to me and your LinkedIn customers. If you cannot provide this list, then please escalate this support request to the next level of support or the LinkedIn Management team. Be aware that I don't care that you have a list or want to use this list to censor the discussions on your platform. You have the right to do that, just don't make it a secret such that you are wasting the time and effort of your customers.

Another response from LinkedIn, another denial, kinda, sorta ... This time they admit to censorship "through automated tools", then deny the automated tools locate or remove content based on political views. OK, then on what basis are the automated tools removing content? Please provide that list of rules, that is all I am asking for!

Response 10/02/2016 14:20 CST

I'm sorry it's taken this long to get back to you and thanks for being so patient.

Please know that we generally review content that has been flagged by other members or through automated tools, but we don't have any filters or rules designed to locate or remove political views. LinkedIn does reserve the right to remove content that doesn't comport with LinkedIn's User Agreement or LinkedIn Professional Community Guidelines.

Regards,

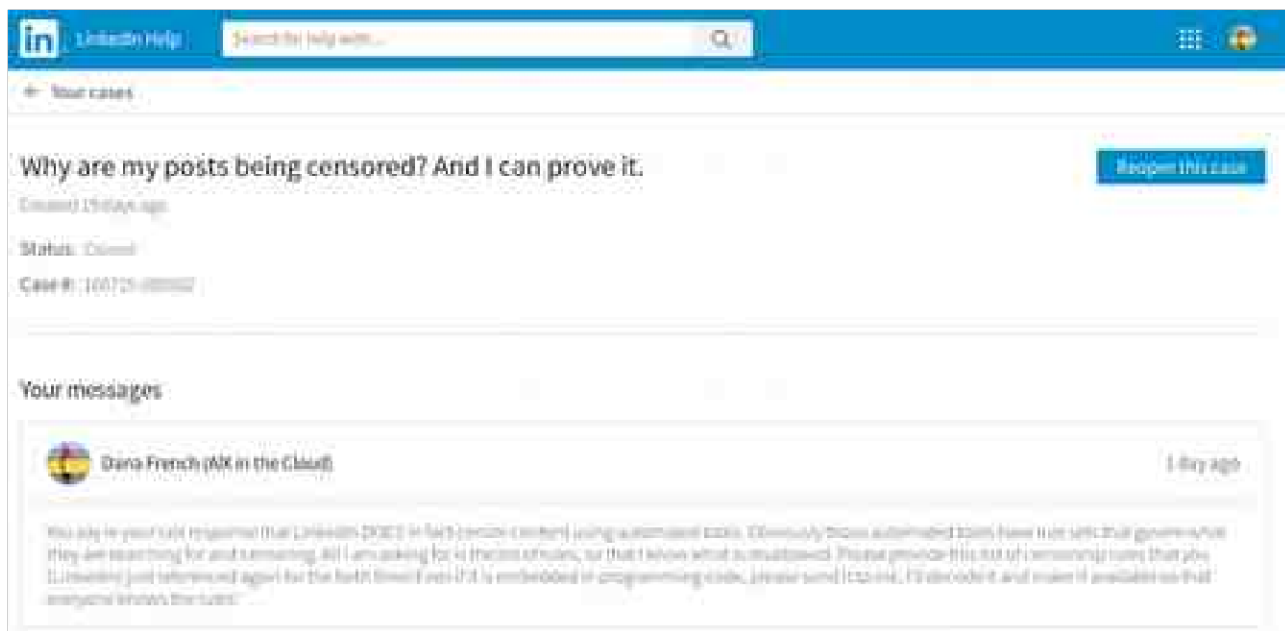

Faith
LinkedIn Trust & Safety

Here I ask for the censorship rules for reviewing content associated with the automated tools referenced in the last response by LinkedIn Support:

 Dana French (AIX in the Cloud) 2 seconds ago

You say in your last response that LinkedIn DOES in fact censor content using automated tools. Obviously their automated tools have rule sets that govern what they are searching for and censoring. All I am asking for is the list of rules, so that I know what is disallowed. Please provide this list of censorship rules that you (LinkedIn) just referenced again for the billionth time. Even if it is embedded in programming code, please send it to me, I'll decode it and make it available so that everyone knows the rules!

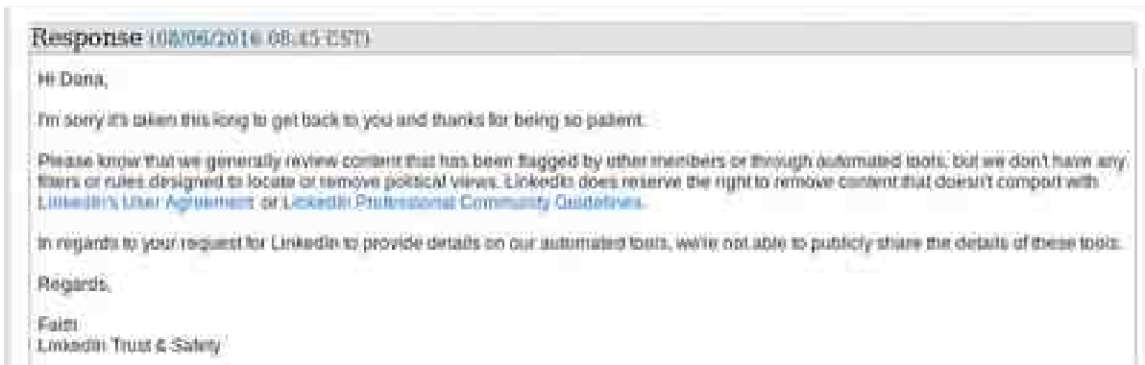

Just when I think that LinkedIn support can't get any more despicable, they prove me wrong! They just got even more despicable, they closed the support ticket without response and without notification in the hope that I wouldn't notice and it would just go away. I NOTICED!

I reopen the case and ask it to be immediately escalated to LinkedIn Management.

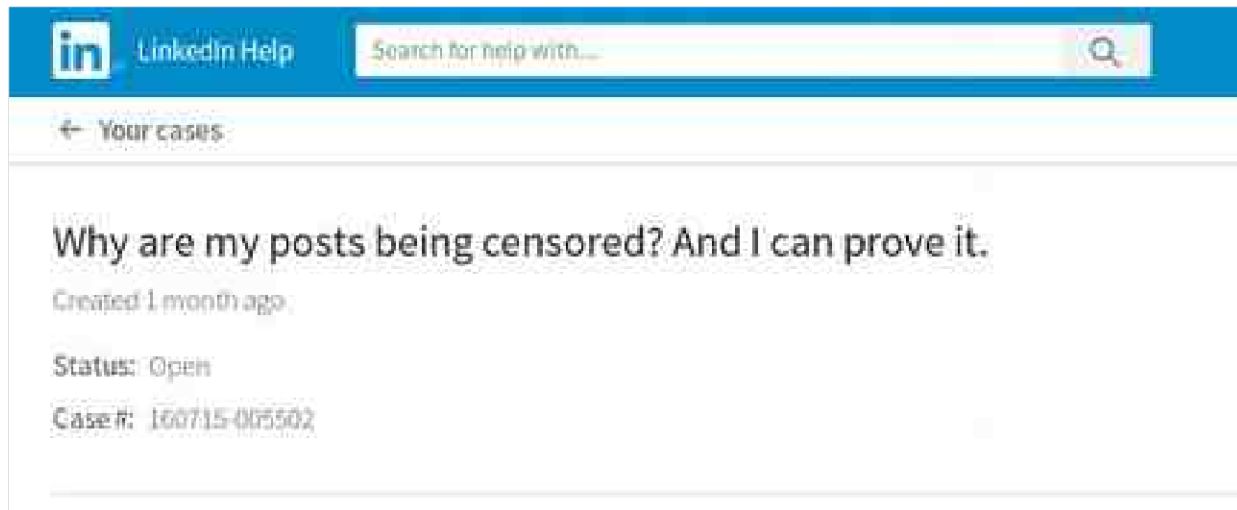

In the latest response, LinkedIn Support completely ignores my request to escalate this to LinkedIn Management, and they do not address the fact they attempted to close the case without response or notification. Again they admit they censor content using automated tools but refuse to tell the LinkedIn users what the censorship rules are governing those tools. Again they close the case without resolution.

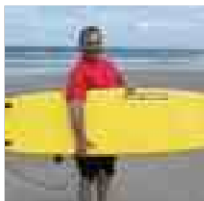

I reopen the case and identify the latest reply from LinkedIn Support as being not responsive to my request to escalate this case to LinkedIn Management. Again I request escalation...

This support case has been open for over a month now and LinkedIn support is ignoring it.

Stay tuned to the continuing saga...

I exposed millions in fraud and CRIMINAL RETALIATION by BellevueWASchools. They wasted over a million dollars destroying me for a decade as a union officer who defended the rights of dozens of workers. LinkedIn retaliated with a corrupt sponsor of illegal activity at BellevueWASchools. They routinely limited views on my posts and just eliminated thousands of followers with my account. I've helped the FBI take down much bigger criminals than these wanbabes.

Dana, I read the entire thread, and I can very much understand your frustration and concern. LinkedIn's responses not only obfuscate the obvious, but also pander without really addressing the reality. I will look forward to any future developments (but not really optimistically that anything will actually be done by LinkedIn - they seem to be in the same position as Facebook)....

liberalism is baked into the social media cake. Free speech is under assault, most obviously on many college campuses, but also in the news media, which presents a conformist view to its audience and gets a politically segregated audience in return.

So many inexplicable occurrences for we who are more Conservative politically. As a for instance, a few weeks ago - I was posting articles and comments, but no one was replying or commenting on the articles which were extremely unusual. A couple of my friends emailed me privately to ask me why I had deleted my profile. I hadn't deleted my profile, but none of my friends and contacts could not see the profile, my comments or the articles posted. I could still log in and everything looked normal from my end. Everything looked to post as usual. I emailed LI help center to ask why no other person in the LinkedIn universe could see my profile but me and mentioned the term "veiled discrepancy".

Immediately my profile was taken down so even I couldn't see my profile any longer. Next LI sent me a message that I would have to furnish a copy of my driver's license front and back and they would see if they could restore my profile. I complied and was immediately restored. The kicker was I then asked repeatedly why they took my profile down and they repeatedly said, "It was just a LI mistake". Really? A mistake? Now I ask you, why would LI take down my profile - a paying customer - and require DL pictures after being on LI since 2009 with 23,500+ contacts, recommendations and endorsements of people I have done business with at this time without viewing the profile and telling me why they were taking my profile down. BTW - I don't use bad language or personally attack anyone. Any idea why they would do such a thing to an Independent Constitutional Conservative?

Reading the original discussion will help to understand why LI did what they did. By interpreting the message's tone and political-severity of the topic(s); I think would help to know the "why" in all this. I think it's terrible what happened and any discussions on politics should be treated fairly and with respect for one another's views.
