

Google Caught Red-Handed Censoring Search Results For The DNC

When searching for terms that challenged the official narrative of the Parkland shooting, the results on Google varied drastically, compared to other search engines.

By John Vibes -

Sh 946

Tw

+1

Pir 1

Sh

017

Google may be the world's most popular search engine, but it has also been the subject of a number of accusations in recent years that it is purposefully censoring searches and influencing results. In the case of search results related to the Parkland shooting, that alleged influence is becoming even more apparent.